3. The program strives to create well informed, sustainability-minded leaders. Is there any current issue in your company that could benefit from a more resilient solution?

4. We're interested in the ideas that inform your thinking. Which publications (online or print) do you read regularly? Was there any particular book or periodical that you read recently that you found particularly insightful?

5. What motivates you? What issues are you most passionate about?

6. NEXT is focused on professional growth and better preparing people for managing complex challenges. What are your long-term career objectives? What are the next major milestones that you need to hit?

7. All work and no play is unsustainable. What are your interests outside of work? Are there any independent projects you are pursuing (not necessarily sustainability related)?

8. How did you hear about the program?
